PEAK PRODUCTION DEMANDED IN WAR PLANS

DUTCH, UNDER WAVELL, FIGHT BACK AT JAPS

Gen. George Brett Also Arrives In Netherlands East Indies

JAPAN'S ATTACKS ARE BROADENING

Three American Bombers Attack Nipponese Near Tarakan Island

(By Associated Press)

BATAVIA, N. E. I., Jan. 14.—The hard fighting little army of the Netherlands Indies hurled itself upon the Japanese today on the Sarawak frontier in Borneo and in hand-to-hand fighting near Lake Tondano on the northeastern tip of the Celebes while bombers of the Allied air forces struck at the Japanese invasion bases.

It was announced, at the same time, that Sir Archibald F. Wavell, Allied generalissimo in the south-west Pacific, had arrived in The Netherlands Indies with his staff. Newspapers printed pictures of their arrival at a Netherlands airfield but did not indicate where Wavell's headquarters will be.

His second in command, Lieutenant General George H. Brett, former chief of the United States army air corps, also has arrived. A Netherlands communiqué indicated a broadened scope of the Japanese attacks, reporting that Japanese bombers had struck at the oil port of Balikpapan on the east coast of Dutch Borneo some 300 miles south of the Japanese-captured island of Tarakan.

Bombers Hit Back

NEI bombers, the Dutch said, hit back with attacks on Japanese vessels in the harbor at Tarakan and on a base in the southern Philippines from which the Japanese were springing their invasions.

The communiqué said a direct hit was scored on one ship at Tarakan.

The attack on the southern Philippines, the war report said, was carried out by a flying boat of the NEI navy which returned safely after dropping bombs on a barracks and runway of a Japanese used airfield.

On land, the fighting was along the Sarawak-Dutch Borneo jungle frontier and in the Minahassa region of the northeastern arm of Celebes.

O.K. FUND FOR THREE MONTHS

Solons Provide for Operations Until Full Budget Is Set Up

A three-month appropriation, carrying a grand total of $64,902.99, was approved as an emergency measure last night by city council in order that the city might be able to meet current obligations and transact other financial dealings until such time as definite word is received from the Columbiana county budget commission on estimated revenue for the year.

No other items were before council at its special meeting last night. Totals established for the various funds for the operation of the different departments for the first quarter are:

General fund, $22,167.39;
Waterworks fund, $30,750;
Gasoline tax street repair fund, $4,500.

Bond retirement, $7,435.

Grand total, $64,902.99.

Councilman Harry Vincent, finance committee chairman, announced that the salary schedule in the three-month appropriation is a continuation of the one in effect during the last two years.

He explained that the finance committee had spent considerable time trying to devise a means of giving wage increases to city employees but that the committee actually did not know where it stood until some word of anticipated resources was received from county officials.

The committee, he added, feels confident that if conditions later on are favorable to wage boosts, the committee will recommend such action.

The police and firemen last May asked for a restoration of their pay to the original $165 a month scale. They are now getting $148.50 monthly.

Service and waterworks department employees, through their municipal employees' union, have requested wage boosts repeatedly.

READY TO RATION NEW AUTOMOBILES

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Price Administrator Leon Henderson told the house small business committee today plans have been made for the rationing of between 600,000 and 700,000 new automobiles, and that new cars produced the balance of this month would be held for at least one year to meet future needs.

New car production the balance of this month, he said, is estimated at 130,000 to 140,000 units. Of the cars to be rationed, some 550,000 to 600,000 are new ones which were in stock on January 1, when the present freezing went into effect, and 65,000 to 75,000 are cars produced to date this month.

The rationing program, which Henderson said is subject to final approval by the supplies, priorities and allocations board, "in the main will follow the tire rationing plan." Henderson and Floyd V. Odum, head of the OPM priorities and contract distribution system, were called before the committee.

RUSSIANS PUSHING HITLER BACKWARD

(By Associated Press)

Russian troops were reported advancing within 100 miles of Adolf Hitler's winter headquarters at Smolensk today, while in the south, Red army forces were pictured as storming at the outer gates of Kharkov, Russia's "Pittsburgh" in the Ukraine.

Soviet military dispatches said collapse of a German wing defending a flank of the Moscow-to-Moscow highway had knocked out the Germans' "last zone of positional warfare" before Moscow and that "the whole front is now in motion."

The Russians declared that Hitler's reeling armies had lost 200,000 killed between Nov. 16 and Jan. 6, with 20,000 slain in recent fighting in the Donets river industrial basin.

Soviet troops were described as now battering heavily against German defenses at Moshalsk itself, 57 miles west of Moscow, where a Nazi garrison of 100,000 men still held out despite the danger of being trapped by Russian pioneers closing in from the north and south.

German military quarters acknowledged that the Russians had broken into Moshalsk lines Sunday, but asserted they were dislodged in a counter-attack which cost the Russians 300 dead.

BRITISH CABINET TO BE RESHUFFLED

LONDON, Jan. 14.—A reshuffle of the British cabinet as a result of criticism over war management and changes in ministerial assignments were described as imminent today in parliamentary circles.

It was stated that announcements might be expected in the return to London of Prime Minister Churchill from his conferences in Washington with President Roosevelt.

Some informants said the changes likely would involve appointment of a new minister of supply not because of dissatisfaction with Lord Beaverbrook, who now holds the post, but because he is expected to be kept in Washington to help coordinate Allied supply problems.

Prominently mentioned as likely to succeed Lord Beaverbrook at least in temporary capacity while he is abroad was one of his right-hand men—Col. John L. Llewellyn, former parliamentary secretary to the ministry of supply and aircraft production.

Llewellyn generally is regarded by the British as an able man who deserves promotion.

Alfred Duff Cooper also appears to be in line for a new job now that he has been recalled from his post as resident commissioner for Far Eastern affairs in Singapore.

NELSON NAMED AS "ONE-MAN" CONTROL UNIT

"Too Much, Too Soon" To Take Place of "Too Little, Too Late" Criticism

MORE TANKS, PLANES IS CONSTANT GOAL

Production Field Seen As Allied Hope for Ultimate Victory

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—President Roosevelt pointed the nation's industry today toward the "brilliant pitiless" peaks of World War efficiency by making Donald M. Nelson the all-powerful production czar of the herculean arms program.

It will be Nelson's job to duplicate, if not surpass, the masterful economic generalship which wrung tribute from Field Marshal Von Hindenburg after the last conflict, and the grudging acknowledgment: "They understood war."

The creation of one-man production control—a step long urged on Mr. Roosevelt by his friends and critics alike—momentarily distracted the capital's attention from the Pacific war fronts. It promised initiative in the production field where lies the allied hope for ultimate victory.

Far East Still Adverse

The situation in the Far East continued adverse, for the most part. There was a quiet elation over the way General MacArthur smashed the heavy Japanese attack in the Philippines yesterday, but this was tempered by realization that the enemy had overwhelming forces available for new assaults, whereas the defenders' losses, however small, were irreparable.

Advances from the Malayan and Netherlands Indies fronts indicated that the tempo of the Japanese advances might be slackening somewhat, but the capital could not ignore the fact that the enemy still was making progress, and that temporary superiority in material was making this progress possible.

It was with high interest, therefore, that Washington received President Roosevelt's surprise announcement last night, investing Nelson, former mail order executive, with supreme authority for war material production.

Asks "Too Much Too Soon"

Only a few hours earlier Nelson had made plain that his goal was to substitute "too much, too soon" for the old "too little, too late" cry that has dogged allied arms.

"We're going to build so many planes and tanks," he said, speaking in his old role as OPM's primary director, "that we will be all over those of us who had anything to do with it are going to be criticized because we built too much."

Now the big, bulky, bespectacled man will have everything to do with it.

Mr. Roosevelt said the board would have the powers now exercised by the supply priorities and allocations board, and that Vice

SECRETARY KNOX'S GRAND STRATEGY

Using the United States Conference of Mayors as a sounding board, Secretary of Navy Knox has warned his countrymen to expect things to get worse before they get better in the Pacific. Most of them are way ahead of Mr. Knox. Nevertheless, as a confirmation of their own notion about grand strategy, his official opinion is heard with lively interest.

Nazi Germany, as the secretary of the navy sees the situation, is the real enemy. Japan and Italy are satellites. Neither could stand without Germany's support. If they were to be defeated, moreover, there still would be Nazi Germany to defeat. On the other hand, by defeating Nazi Germany the anti-Axis bloc can assure the defeat of Japan and Italy. Therefore, nothing must be allowed to detract from the war effort against Germany.

Japan's treacherous attack on Pearl Harbor and the humiliation of the disaster there, followed immediately by realization that further disasters were in store in the Philippines, immediately raised a dangerous possibility. The United States might become so obsessed with the thought of revenge against Japan that it would lose sight of Germany, instigator of Axis strategy. Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Washington, followed by announcement of unified command in the Far East, narrowed the possibility greatly; the declaration by Secretary Knox seems to eliminate it entirely.

Whether or not Japan may become the unintended beneficiary of a plan that does not call for its immediate defeat at any cost is problematic. It is not to be imagined that there would be such a plan if it had not been dictated by necessity, however. The plain truth is, the United States and its allies are unable to do anything conclusive about Japan at this time; they are making the best of a situation that is almost entirely in Japan's favor.

THE DUTCH HAVE A REASON

While it is common knowledge that Japan's main goal is the Netherlands East Indies, the fact was lost sight of in the torrent of Far Eastern news. Japan's largest attack on Celebes and Borneo brings it into focus.

The attack was launched from Mindanao, in the Philippines. When the United States proved unable to stop the Japs in the territory for which it was responsible, the Dutch defenders became more vulnerable. If they, in turn, let the Japs through, the British will be routed at Singapore. The British already can see the pincers coming—one claw through Malaya, the other through the Philippines and the East Indies.

Those who have expressed astonishment at the good fight the Dutch have waged in the preliminary phases of the battle realize now they were trying to meet danger more than halfway. The East Indies, now that the mother country has been over-run by the Germans, offer Dutchmen their only hope of rehabilitation. If they lose this priceless possession, they will be washed up as a nationality group. It has been said, in fact, that as between losing Holland and the East Indies, most Dutchmen would have preferred to sacrifice Holland, if given a free choice.

The Dutch will continue to put up a good battle; they have had no illusions about the necessity for defense of their possessions. They can only regret that their allies in the Far East were did so much less than they needed to do to establish genuine security against Japan's aggressive intentions.

FARMERS GO AFTER THEIR

Small operators in the disappointing field of farm-boosting unity decided long ago that it was hopeless. There was no bond of sympathy between the worker and the farmer. As a theory, the thing was all roses and apple pie, but in practice it just didn't work—too much jealousy.

All of this comes to mind as Secretary of Agriculture Wickard starts to dodge brickbats for demanding the power of veto over prices fixed on farm products. Mr. Wickard is actually doing only what is expected of him. He is looking out for farmers' interests.

Not only is he adhering to the time-honored policy of trying to boost farm income relative to national income as a whole, but he is assuring a supply of farm products. If the United States is going to feed the world, it must be made worthwhile to the farmers, in other words.

This is repugnant to the feelings of a great many persons who do not share the agricultural point of view, but all it amounts to in actuality is that the farmers are going after theirs. They have watched labor taking care of its interests; they are looking after the interests of agriculture. In the words that Farmer Turnipseed might use: Let him who is without sin cast the first tomato.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, January 15

A DAY of high-pressure and forceful tactics may be successfully applied to new enterprises, in which great initiative and ingenuity are required for putting over ambitious projects. New and untried objectives should be pushed to desired goals but with some opposition, intrigue and underhand methods of attack from strangers, elders or some kind of secret organizations. Keep alert to all hidden and obscure contacts and use well-organized strategies to avert duplicity and fraud. Attend to health and family welfare.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of lively and productive activities with new and major projects moving at high tempo and with gratifying results. These springing from excellent skill, much creative ability and initiative, and with determination and decisive measures when opposition as well as craft, shrewdness, duplicity and peculiar intrigues menace. Be vigilant as to all strange and suspicious contacts where there may be subterfuge and betrayal lurking. Care for the health and for happiness of the domestic, social and affectional associations.

A child born on this day should have much skill, initiative and constructive ability with energy, originality and resolution, but may be subject to imposition and fraud as well as intrigue and betrayal where little expected.

"TOO MUCH, TOO SOON"—NEW SLOGAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—A tireless, tough-hearted driver, Donald M. Nelson, is taking charge of American war industry under a pledge to sweat the country into all-out arms production.

He wants the story henceforth to be "too much, too soon" instead of the requiem, "too little, too late." "Just ahead of us are the hardest years we have been through since Valley Forge," says the man President Roosevelt has chosen to boss the whole production program.

"This defense program isn't any WPA program—a joyride—for industry. We are not playing for marbles. It's a life and death struggle. We are going to need the labor of every available worker and every machine that can be used in the land."

"We can overtake Hitler. The man who says we can't is either blindly ignorant or believes that democracy and freedom are played out and helpless."

These are the words Nelson has been preaching to industrialists and politicians alike in speeches and conferences for more than a year. To fellow defense officials content with the rising curve of weapon production he has been dining that the program was not half big enough.

Nelson is a natural advocate of hard work and self-denial as the solution of the nation's problems. He fought his way up from the other side of the tracks to a $75,000-a-year job as vice-president of Sears Roebuck in charge of merchandising before he was called to Washington June 30, 1940, as coordinator of defense purchasing.

He was born in Hannibal, Mo., 54 years ago, the son of an engineer for the Katy railroad. He worked his way through Missouri university by selling papers, jerking sodas and stoking furnaces. In 1912 he took a "temporary job" with Sears Roebuck to earn money for graduate work but stayed with the mail order firm, rising rapidly through his ability as a clever buyer who stocked up in slack times.

Before his new appointment Nelson held a dual role as OPM priority director and as executive director of the supply, priorities, and allocations board.

RHEUMATIC FEVER IS HEALTH PROBLEM

Rivals Pneumonia and Respiratory Infections

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN CANADA and the Northern United States, rheumatic fever becomes one of the most serious health problems in winter, probably rivaling pneumonia and the respiratory infections. As one goes south, it is of less frequency and severity.

The reason that rheumatic fever is of such great importance lies not in the fact that it is itself such a deadly disease, but on account of the complications in the heart. About half of all organic heart disease in middle age can be traced to an attack of rheumatic fever in childhood and youth.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

While we know rheumatic fever is due to a germ, this germ has not been identified and we have no preventive serum. We must depend upon attempts to control it through such factors as protection against climatic conditions and poor housing.

Influence of Climate

The influence of climate is well shown by the study made by Drs. Paul and Dixon of rheumatic fever on different Indian reservations in the United States and Canada. Dividing these reservations into three groups depending on their geographic locations, we find that in the northern group rheumatic heart diseases occurred at the rate of 9%. In the middle and more temperate climate, it occurred at the rate of about 4%, and in mild and southern climates it occurred at the rate of less than 1%.

Other factors which enter into the prevalence of rheumatic fever are housing, clothing and protection against cold and damp weather. Still another which was found to be very important in many parts of the country was the presence of protective foods in the diet. These protective, vitamin-containing foods—milk, eggs, fresh vegetables and fruits, the two latter particularly—are very likely to be neglected in the household which is on a limited budget.

Infected tonsils and to a certain extent teeth, are also found to be causative factors.

Importance of Rest

As to treatment, it is not possible to place too much insistence on the enjoyment of rest for a long period after the attack has subsided.

In the acute period the infection attacks the joints, causing fever, sweating and pain. When this is over, the patient feels so good that he usually wants to get up, but wise care demands that these patients should spend at least six weeks in bed after the subsidence of all joint symptoms.

This was once dramatically presented to me in my practice in the case of two children whose families lived next door to each other. Both children were attacked almost at the same time with rheumatic fever. Both had a mild course and in both cases the families were advised to keep the children in bed for the minimal period of six weeks.

Two Cases

One family was impressed with the necessity of this and carried it out faithfully; in fact the little boy stayed in bed, in spite of his protests, for about three months. In the other family vigilance was relaxed after a week, and within two weeks the child was up and engaged in his usual round of activities, which as is usual in childhood, were very vigorous.

I was able to follow these children for over ten years. The little boy who was kept in bed for three months never developed any heart complications of rheumatic fever, and when last heard of was healthy and vigorous. In the case of the child who got up too soon, another attack came about three years later and within six weeks there were unmistakable evidences of impairment of the valves of the heart.

Of course, this might have happened even if precautions had been taken during the entire convalescent period, but that is not the general experience and as I say, the two cases are a striking example of this one factor in the management of acute rheumatic fever.

Questions And Answers

J. S.—"Is it dangerous to have tonsils removed by an electric needle?"

Answer: Tonsils can be removed successfully in this way, but it must be done by one who has had considerable experience. There are several other better ways of removing the tonsils.

Emerald Embassy by FRANCIS GERARD

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

Meredith experienced much difficulty in getting a telephone call through to Madame de Vassignac. Prince Salsu and Toto, the apache, provided that blockade. Sir John was obliged at last to resort to a ruse whereby he spoke to her from a lobby of the hotel, after the Countess herself admitted Sir John to the suite. She did not seem surprised, and welcomed him warmly with her most enchanting smile.

"I am very glad to see you, Sir John."

"You are very kind to see me, Madame," at such short notice, Meredith said as he followed her into the drawing-room.

The Countess regarded her visitor with level brows which drew down slightly into a tiny frown, as unconscious as it was transient. There was something different about this man, not so much in his features as in his bearing, which she had never seen before. He had the air of a man who had been through a great deal, and who was now looking at her with a certain detachment and calmness. He seemed less human and less splendidly adorned.

She leaned forward and held out an agate box of cigarettes. He looked up into her eyes for a moment as he took a cigarette, and then quickly glanced away again, as though he would hide his expression, but he was not quick enough for the girl recognized what she had seen in this man's eyes. She had a feeling of mingled contempt and triumph. So this master of crime specialist was not totally free of those chains which shackled most men. She watched his throat and the faintest shadow of amusement crept into her expression as she saw him swallow.

Anne replaced the cigarette box on the table at her side, not intending to smoke herself, and then quickly changed her mind and, placing a cigarette between her lips, leaned forward that he might hold his lighter to it. Her hair was very near his face and the hand which held the lighter was not quite steady. She gently placed her long, slim fingers with their blood-red nails upon his hand, and held his eyes over the tiny flame of the lighter. She inhaled a little sigh, blue smoke trickling slowly from her half-parted lips.

Sir John smiled at her uncertainty. He frowned down at the cigarette between his fingers and seemed to be searching for a conversational opening. She watched him beneath her lashes, conscious of a growing sense of excitement. What might happen when this strong man found his great self-control broken? He might become even more dangerous, she mused, but... what sweet danger that would be!

Meredith's frown deepened. He shot her a quick glance in which his indecision was plainly written; then said, "I thought... It is somewhat difficult, Madame, to... He broke off and stared helplessly at her. He bit his lip and went on as though suddenly taking a firm resolve. "Madame, I have a very bitter confession to make. I have to admit that, as far as the Salungu necklace is concerned, I have, for the first time in my life, come up against an opponent who is just a little too good for me."

Having made this totally unexpected admission, Sir John sat forward in his chair, his forearms resting on his knees, his face turned away from the girl. For a long minute, she made no comment, her eyes studying his averted face, noting the downward drag at the corners of the ordinarily strong mouth and noting, too, that the clasped fingers of his hands were gripping so tightly as to make the knuckles stand out white beneath the skin.

Anne de Vassignac was puzzled. From all she had heard of Meredith, she had expected this admission of failure least of all. It was out of character; her fine eyes darkened and narrowed in dawning suspicion.

Meredith shot a glance at her out of the corner of his eye and read the trend of her thoughts. His lips twisted into a bitter smile as he said, his voice betraying a faint huskiness. "You find it difficult to credit, Madame. And yet you shouldn't, you less than anyone." He broke off momentarily, then went on, each word weighing heavily: "You told me that I didn't stand a chance of finding this internal lock. You were right."

Sir John ceased speaking for a moment and the girl waited in silence, her eyes never leaving his face. "You think it odd, don't you, Madame, that I should come to you and tamely admit defeat? But," he shrugged, "it would be mere folly to continue with something that is evidently hopeless."

Anne de Vassignac stirred suddenly from her stiltedness and said, "Why have you come to see me then? Surely not to afford me an opportunity of triumphing over you!"

Meredith appeared to hesitate, then replied, his voice rather weary. "No, that was not by object, though it is a fact which I must face. Of course, I could wash my hands of the whole affair but the ties of friendship are stronger than those of mere duty. Lord Lantheaster and Mr. Blydes-Steele are my friends and... Well, I hoped to be able to help them. As far as I can see, they face political ruin either way for the 'Honour of the Emerald' is a title which they take seriously. You, Madame, as the claimant to the throne of Salungu, will realize that it carries weight."

He glanced enquiringly at her and she nodded her dark head slowly in assent as he went on. "No, I'm not here merely to make an admission of failure, but to try to gain my objective by a method which I have already tried and which did not succeed."

The girl frowned as she asked incredulously, "Surely, Sir John, you're not thinking of attempting to buy the necklace back?"

Meredith shrugged. "What other course is left open?" he asked. He held up his hand as she made to answer. "No, no," he urged, "please don't dismiss the idea altogether."

"But, Sir John," protested the Countess, "I told you before that were you to offer me twenty million it would not induce me to part with the Salungu emeralds."

"There fell a short silence between them; then Meredith said quietly, "Well, I suppose I'm finished."

He rose heavily to his feet and stood looking down at her, his face very bitter. "It was kind of you to see me, Madame. I won't take up more of your time."

Anne looked up at the lean height of the man before her and held his eyes. "Sit down, Sir John," she said patting the sofa at her side.

He looked at her with an expression of faint bewilderment and then, at the back of his eyes, she read a sudden hope.

"Sit down," she urged again and Meredith sank down onto a deep sofa his knee not three inches from hers.

"Well, Madame?" he queried, his voice scarcely above a whisper.

She looked at him steadily, and then that fascinating mouth of hers parted in the slow smile which had broken the control of many a man before Meredith. He stirred uneasily and again her eyes went briefly to his throat.

"Tell me something about yourself, Sir John," she suggested gently.

"I have made my admission," said Meredith shortly. "Do you want me to grovel?"

Anne de Vassignac shook her head. "Could you?" she asked.

He glanced at her in surprise and, for a moment, she had a brief glimpse of the Meredith she had met at their first interview, as an expression of genuine amusement appeared for a fraction of a second, on his face.

"I don't know," he said. "I've never tried."

She leaned towards him and laid a cool hand on his wrist while asking, "Have you made many failures?"

He looked down, his eyes on that slim hand. He frowned uncertainly and then said, "No, not many."

"I think your antagonists hitherto must have been men," she stated calmly.

Again he looked at her in surprise as he nodded and said, "Yes, that is more or less true."

"More or less?"

"There was... there was one woman," he said. "But she..."

"Was she young?"

"Yes."

"Was she very beautiful?"

"I... I suppose so."

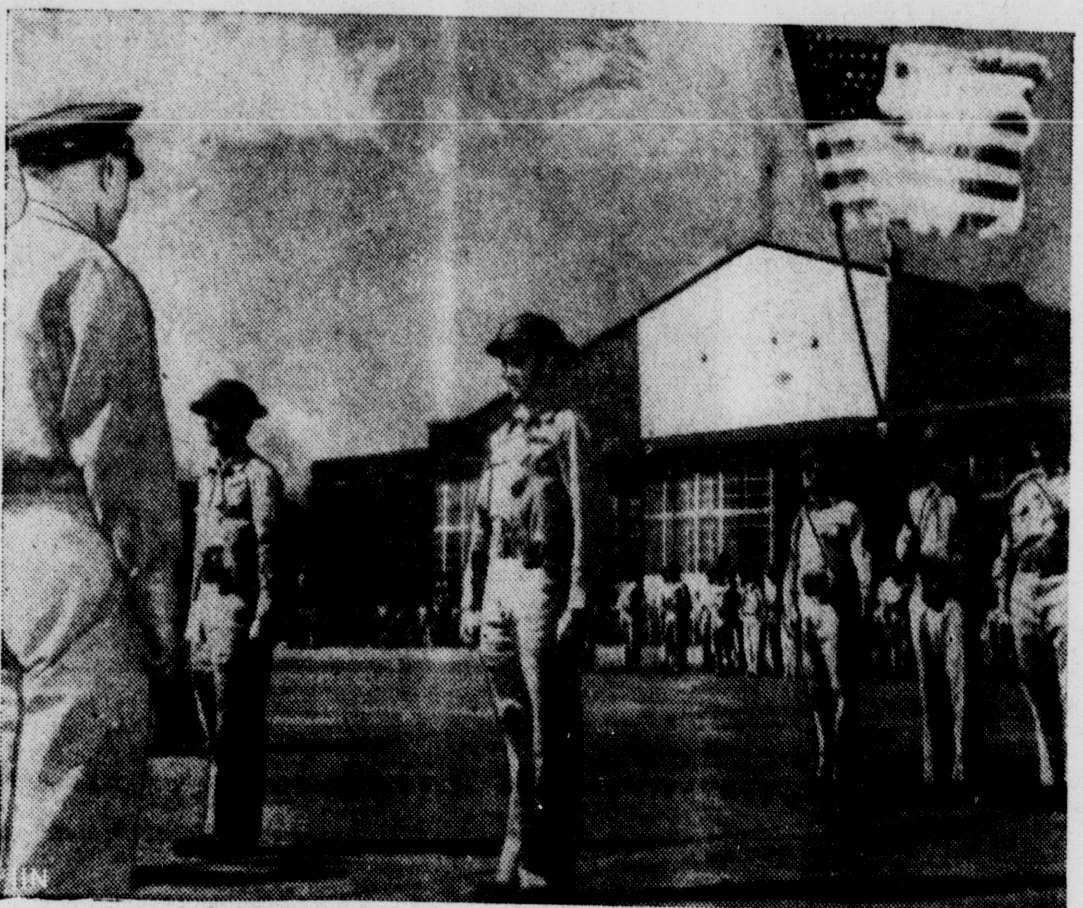

"And you let her go, Sir John?"

Meredith moved restlessly. "You see, Anne, she suffered terribly. Her judgment had been warped, her outlook on life twisted. What she did was against the law but..."

"But you had compassion and above all you understood," suggested the girl softly, noting his use of her christian name. "You're a strange man," she went on withdrawing her hand from his arm and leaning back. She allowed her charming head to sink into the huge jade-green cushion against which the lovely lines of her figure were thrown into distinct relief.

Meredith turned his head slowly and looked at her. She saw a dawning wonder appear in his face and, far back, in those ordinarily controlled blue eyes, what was like the sudden leaping of a tiny flame. (To be continued)

Visits Philippine Islands Before Japs Become Hostile

Lisbon Youth, On Destroyer, Sees Beauty of South Pacific Before Spoiled By Nippon

An interesting account of a trip to the Philippines aboard a United States destroyer, taken shortly before the outbreak of hostilities between the United States and Japan, has been received by Mrs. Rose Smith of the Lisbon road, from her son, Dudley, 18.

Dudley, a former Kroger store employee here, was assigned to the destroyer after he joined the navy in September, 1940. He is a Lisbon High school graduate.

With no thoughts of warfare, young Smith told of how, one evening, his boat left the harbor of Oahu in the Hawaiian islands. The next stop was to be Manila. Everywhere, he said, was elated at the thought of going to the Philippines and immediately began studying maps.

Run Into Hurricane

"The next day was one that won't be forgotten by all of us for a long time," he wrote. "We ran into the first hurricane that most of had ever seen. It started one night and continued until the next evening. The wind blew 80 miles an hour and the rain came in torrents. The visibility was very low. Our ship pitched and rolled and groaned with the strain. Waves came over the bow 20 feet above the deck, and at times, the bow was completely submerged."

"The beauty of many of the 7,000 islands in the Philippine group, many of which we passed, cannot be put on paper," Dudley continued.

"Now we were in the South China sea and made preparations for entering the port of Manila that evening. Our first view of Manila was of its beautiful waterfront. When the liberty bell rang after we had docked, everyone made for the gangplank and got taxis to go up town. The right-hand drive cabs are cheap transportation as our dollar is worth two of theirs in their money. Two pesos is one American dollar, or what they call it."

"We visited San Miguel's cabaret, which is one of the largest in the world, out in the Santa Anna district. In most of the night clubs on the outskirts of the city was the sign, 'Leave your firearms or weapons as you enter.'"

Drink "Geneva Gin"

"The native drink is Geneva gin, which is very cheap and manufactured from the meat of the coconut."

large bands of savage headhunters who come down out of the mountains every so often, and armed with large bolo knives, capture women and children and take them back after killing the men. They never see the women and children again. The only protection they have against the bands are the police and a small army.

"A few natives," Smith related, "chew a drug called beetle nut. The drug acts upon them somewhat like Marijuana. However, the drug turns their teeth almost jet black and eventually rots them."

She Saved Draft Board Files

Col. Arthur V. McDermott, director of Selective Service for the New York City area is shown examining the injured wrist of Miss Alice Leventhal, clerk of a Brooklyn draft board. She was hurt while preventing two men from interfering with the Board's confidential files. It is believed the men were attempting to erase traces of their registration.

Today's Pattern

QUICK-TO-SEW HOME FROCK Pattern 4981

If you're busier than a bee these days, yet want to make yourself a jolly new home frock, why not order Pattern 4981 by Anne Adams. It takes very little time to sew—there are only four main sections back and front. The bias insets at the waist give a slim look to this dress. The tie-belt in front is optional. And aren't the white collar and cuffs a refreshing note? Top-stitch them if you like, or make them of the same fabric as the dress. The Sewing Instructor has a step-by-step plan that aids in sewing this as quickly as possible. Other choices are long sleeves, revers and tie-trim, and the belt may be used in back instead of front, or omitted altogether.

Pattern 4981 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42. Size 16 takes 3 1/4 yards 35 inch fabric and 5/8 yard contrast.

CLOTHES FOR WORK EFFICIENT; FOR PLAY, CHARMING

Left, brown tulle evening gown with beige lace inserts; center, one-piece coverall; right, black crepe afternoon dress.

Every day our country is making more demands on its women. We must shoulder our share of the defense work, but be more serene and glamorous than ever in leisure hours in order that our fighting sons, husbands and brothers may find a normal life to come back to. For working hours, get a businesslike, one-piece coverall that envelops you from neck to ankle, fastening snugly at wrists and ankles, like the one shown above at center. Choose either cotton duck, drill, denim or corduroy. Be sure to have an extra coverall to wear while the other is being laundered. The cover-up evening dress for formal wear is best suited to the world today. The model shown left is made of brown tulle with beige lace inserts at shoulders and waistline. The afternoon dress, right, is of black crepe, simply designed, with accessories that may be changed to give variety. A huge artificial flower coated with luminous paint is helpful in a blackout, so that the passerby can see it at close range and give you right of way.

PEAK PRODUCTION FOR WAR, DEMAND

"Too Much, Too Soon" To Take Place of "Too Little, Too Late" Criticism

President Wallace as well as the other present members of SPAB would serve on it. Nelson has been SPAB's executive director.

Besides being chairman of the board, Nelson "will be charged with the direction of the production program and have general supervision over all production agencies," the White House said. "His decision as to questions of procurement and production will be final."

"Mr. Nelson will report to the President as to the progress of the program. He will no longer serve as director of the (OPM) priorities division but will devote his entire time to directing the production program."

Enacts Baruch Role

Thus Nelson emerged as the combined Beaverbrook-Baruch of the war's production front battle. His board appeared roughly comparable to the war industries board which Bernard M. Baruch directed so astutely in World War I, and will exercise powers similar to those wielded by Britain's ministry of supply, headed by Lord Beaverbrook.

President Roosevelt's announcement setting up the war production board was couched in broad language, indicating that the details of the new supply organization were yet to be worked out. One big question it raised was the future status of the Office of Production Management, and its co-directors, William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman. Heretofore, CPM has had responsibility for the munitions output. From time to time critics have charged it with shortsightedness in estimating the amount of vital raw materials needed for the war effort, and with slowness in getting the nation's industry on an all-out war footing.

In the absence of word to the contrary, the presumption was that OPM like all other home front agencies interested in production or supply would come under the Nelson board's jurisdiction. There was some conjecture that Knudsen might be freed of considerable detail and utilized in a role that would make the most of his genius as a production trouble-shooter and organizer.

"Ton Jon Put An End To My Stomach Distress," Says Warren Man

For Many Years He Could Not Eat Without the Discomforts of Indigestion, Flatulence and Shortness of Breath. Was Exceedingly Nervous But Now Feels Better In Every Way.

He states as follows:

"For a number of years I was bothered with a stomach disturbance that filled those years with plenty of misery. I didn't get much pleasure from eating because nearly everything I ate gave me indigestion. Gas would collect in my stomach and form such a pressure that I would be exceedingly short of breath. My nerves had become quite shaky and my kidneys were giving me a little trouble.

"Because so many other medicines hadn't given me satisfactory results, I was a bit reluctant to try TON JON, but finally did. It is a pleasure to be able to sit down and eat a big meal with the consolation that I won't have any after-eating distress. Resources at the First National were reported to have increased $806,000, from $4,986,000 to $5,792,000. Reserves and loans likewise were declared on the upgrade. Total reserves at the Farmers National bank were the highest ever reported at a stockholders meeting. Substantial additions to reserves brought the bank's total to $3,000,000. Resources were increased a half million. Both financial institutions reported that the purchase of defense bonds and stamps had increased tremendously, reflecting a tendency on the part of depositors to invest savings and current earnings in the defense certificates, a move which bank officials said they strongly recommended. Defense bond sales at the Farmers National bank to date total a quarter million dollars, maturity value.

Fitzpatrick's Roll Over Outclassed Saxon Five By 65-30 Count

KNEPP SHINES IN ROUT; CAVALIERS COP FIFTH IN ROW

Jeffries, McLaughlin, Sid Beechie Also Star For Fitzpatrick's

The Fitzpatrick Service five, playing a good brand of ball, followed up their win over the Altohouse Motors as they routed a none-too-strong Saxon outfit, 65-30, on the Memorial building boards last evening.

Every member of the team who got into the fray scored, with one exception, with Les "Bobo" Knepp showing the way with a 14-point total. Close behind the ex-High star in the scoring column were Bob Jeffries, Glenn "Dinty" McLaughlin and Sid Beechie. Jeffries played his usual fine brand of ball and scored 13 points; "Dinty" McLaughlin had his hottest night in years as he flipped in 13, and Sid Beechie, a newcomer to local hardwood fans, scored 11 on four fielders and a trio of free throws.

It was the Saxons' luck to catch the winners on a night when all of them were "hot." Pacing the losers in the scoring department were Mike Linder and M. Wagner, each of whom scored eight.

Fifth For Cavaliers
In the most exciting ball game of the evening, the Cavaliers stretched their victory string to five as they edged out the Y. P. C. C. in a game deadlocked 15 times. The final count was 39-36. Don "Sal" Freed, the Cavs' leading scorer as well as Class B's pace-setter, again topped the winners in the scoring column as he registered nine fielders and a lone charity toss for a 19-point total.

At the quarter, the Cavs trailed 11-9; at the half they pulled up to knot the count at 14-14; at the three-quarter mark the score stood 20-20 with the score tied numerous times throughout the periods. "Wild Bill" Theiss' nine tallies, capped runaround honors for the Cavaliers.

For the Y. P. C. C. it was all Mike Hippley. He scored 16 markers on seven buckets and a brace of free throws. Lew Martinielli and Larry Fiani helped the losers cause with seven and six points, respectively.

In the other game of the evening, the Trojans trounced the Buckeyes to the tune of 24-13. Bob Rupp and Johnny Drakulich paced the winners' attack with nine and six points, respectively, while Dick Boughton featured for the Buckeyes with four.

DOUG MILLS, ATHLETIC DIRECTOR AND HEAD BASKETBALL COACH AT THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS, A POSSIBILITY TO SUCCEED BOB ZUPPE AS FOOTBALL COACH

BOWLING RESULTS

No changes in standings resulted from last night's bowling in the National league on the Masonic alleys.

The leading Eagles won two from the Sanitary and the City Loan, in second place, won two from the Salem China. The Electric Furnace improved its third place standing by annexing three at the expense of the Masons, while the Salem News took two from Grates.

Bill Hull had 243 for high single game of the night, but Sarge Gregg totaled 609 with games of 214 and 216. Pete Bonnell started off with a 224 and Mike Hutter posted a 237. Curt Shepard had two good games, 210 and 208; Howard Heston had a 238 and Orvil Hoover a 220.

The league-leading Inspectors of the Mullins loop lost ground in last night's bowling at the Grate alleys as they won only two from Production. The second place Finishers displayed some nice bowling to take three from Tool & Die. Duncan rolled a 212. Jimmy Yuhaz fired a 215 and Craig hit a 208 to pace the winners. The Finishers rolled a 902 total their last game.

The Presses lost a fine chance to pick up some ground as they took only two from the Stores. Marv Fieldhouse fired a snappy 235 to wind up his series while Ritchie of the losers ran a close second with a 230. The Costs, until last night right behind the Presses in the standings, slipped a little farther as they lost a pair to the Wringers.

The Cabinets' chances of advancing in the race were blasted last night by the Tryouts, who copped two from them. Huffer's 218 failed to spur the losers.

In other matches, Employment took two at the expense of the Standards, the Enamels battered the Office three games, and the Cutting Room took two from the Tub Room.

The Enamels' second game was sparked by Lopenman with a 210 and Morrison with an even 200. Their grand total was 919 pins. Lopenman also rolled a 203 game.

E. Yates fired a 204 for the Cutting Room his first game.

BUCKEYE POLOISTS TO MEET MICHIGAN STATE IN OPENER

Face Biggest Schedule In O. S. U. History; Play 10 at Home

By FRITZ HOWELL.
COLUMBUS, Jan. 14.—Polo at Ohio State university moved out of the "just for fun" stage today as Maj. Roy A. Horn, coach of the Buckeye riders, announced he had mapped a 17-game schedule, most expansive in history, for the coming spring.

As a tune-up, the Bucks will meet Michigan State next Saturday at East Lansing in a three-man indoor scrap, but Major Horn and his eight-man varsity squad are really aiming at the March-to-June campaign.

In the past the Bucks have seldom played more than four or five contests, but this year's slate will send them against such squads as Oklahoma, Missouri, Dayton, Kenyon, Michigan State, Iowa, Illinois, Harbor Hills and the Alumni.

Ten of the games will be played on the Ohio State field just south of the stadium, with the seven others on foreign lots.

Major Horn has constructed a classy squad around Capt. Dick Tuggle of Cincinnati, who will handle the No. 4 spot. With Tuggle in the starting lineup Saturday will be Bob White and Ralph Chadwick, both juniors, while Dick Todd will round out the four-man starting squad this spring.

Two sophomores, Bill Fletcher and Dan Sterns, and a pair of juniors, Dick Folson and John Bridgman, will round out the varsity squad.

Major Horn and Lieut. E. H. Conner, assistant coach, indicated this season might be the last until the war is over. The mounts used by the polo team belong to the army, and there's better than an even chance the horses will be moved from the campus for more important activity.

Here's the schedule the Bucks will ride through this spring:
March 24 and 26, at Oklahoma; March 28, at Missouri; April 11, Alumni; April 18, Dayton; April 25, Michigan State; May 2, Missouri; May 7, Kenyon; May 9, Iowa; May 13, at Iowa; May 14, at Missouri; May 16, at Illinois; May 21 and 23, Oklahoma; May 27, Illinois; May 30, at Harbor Hills; June 6, Alumni; "Id suggest," Major Horn said, "that polo fans clip the schedule and tuck it away somewhere so they will know when we are playing. The games are free to all spectators, and we'd like to have every one crop around for at least one engagement."

"Those who have never seen a polo game don't realize how thrilling the game is. You'll see plenty of thrills, spills, and fine riding—and it's all free."

BENNY HOGAN WINS LOS ANGELES OPEN GOLF TOURNAMENT

Defeats Jimmy Thomson of California By One Stroke

By ROBERT MYERS
(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14.—Championship golf still pays off on the man who can get 'em down when the chips are down.

Little Benny Hogan proved this when he played the David to Jimmy Thomson's Goliath yesterday, cracking the husky California professional with one spectacular shot on the eighteenth green. That won the playoff of the 17th annual Los Angeles open.

Hogan ran into tougher opposition than many expected before squeezing out a one stroke triumph for the $3500 first prize. He had a 36-36-72 and Thomson, winner of the L. A. open in 1938, had a 38-35-73.

Hogan, using a golf shot instead of a slingshot, felled the California giant with a birdie four on the last green—a birdie that brought peace and calm to thousands of nervous duffers wagered on the little Hershey, Pa. expert.

Thomson overshot the first green for a bogie and Hogan went to the front. Benny birdied the second and fourth and pulled ahead by three strokes.

Fails to Wilt
Good natured Jimmy failed to wilt, however, and pulled up on even terms on the fourteenth. Neither player could be labelled better than good at this stage, but they were handicapped by a gallery of 4,000 which trampled on their heels and in their hair.

Thomson threatened to go into the lead on the seventeenth when Benny's tee shot whistled into a tree, slammed off, hit a spectator and dropped cold. But Hogan recovered with an approach two feet from the pin, and then the pressure was on Jimmy, with a six foot putt staring him in the face. He made it for a birdie and they went to the eighteenth tied up.

Thomson's second fell short at the base of the raised green. Hogan was to the left on a less steep incline. Thomson chipped up 17 feet from the flag, and Hogan spanked his killershot up just 15 inches from the cup.

Jimmy went for his long putt and missed by a scant few inches. Hogan tapped his in and the battle was over. Thomson's consolation second money was $1700.

Leetonia Cagers Bow To Fairfield
The Leetonia High school cagers dropped their second game of the season last night as they lost a one-point decision to a good Fairfield quintet, 19-18, on the Leetonia hardwood.

Both teams displayed a well-balanced attack with the scoring evenly divided. The game was a close one all the way with Leetonia holding a lead for some three quarters.

Heinz led the Blue and White attack with seven tallies while Cope and Lynn shared honors for the winners with five points each.

MERITS, FAULTS OF ZONE DEFENSE ARE COACHES' TOPICS

Cause Arguments Wherever Mentors Meet; Man-For-Man Favored

By CLAIR BEE.
Long Island University Corp., NEW YORK—Some time when you'd like to hear a good argument, stick your head into a group of basketball coaches and say:

"Zone defense."
Then duck!

Those two words can cause more hot talking among basketball men than any other pair in the English language.

Defined, the zone defense is one in which the defensive players take up positions before the offensive basket, shifting their positions to meet the advance of the ball but working more or less in set zones.

Since 1910, when the "five-man defense" was originated, the zone defense (ultimate outgrowth of the five-man) and the man-for-man defense have staged a brilliant battle for superior recognition.

The zone defense seemed to have the upper hand about 20 years ago—but its popularity took a drop when offensive teams countered the massed defense by staying at the other end of the floor and refusing to move against it.

The zone came back through, after a change in the rules which made it mandatory for the offensive team to cross mid-court within 10 seconds after gaining possession of the ball.

Other rule developments and the increase in the use of the "screening" attack (especially hard to guard by man-for-man) has given the zone defense further impetus until now about 40 per cent of the nation's High school teams and 30 per cent of the college teams use it.

The first zone defense put three men up front, the center out a little ahead of the forwards, and two men back—called the 3-2 defense. This was ideal for quick-break teams, since it put the three attackers right up front in position to break for the basket; the second ball changed hands. From that original set-up, the zones changed to a 2-1-2 basis, with the one man assigned to the pivot.

Mt. Union Scores Seventh Straight Win; Batter Heidelberg, 78-44
(By Associated Press)
One-point victory margins provided thrills for fans on Ohio's collegiate basketball front last night.

Ohio University's Bobcats clawed invading Dayton University, 36 to 35, and Wittenberg edged Ohio Northern, 40 to 47, in an Ohio conference tilt at Ada.

Ohio University's behind 19-15 at halftime, overtook the Flyers in the final stanza and at one time led 35-26, but couldn't keep the pace. The victory was Ohio U's third in seven starts and gave Dayton two losses against five victories.

It was Forward Woltjen's free throw that accounted for Wittenberg's victory after the Polar Bears, on the short end of a 30-19 score at the half, flashed to a 40-39 lead only to have the count knotted at 45 and 47 points before the deciding tally. The victory was the Lutherans' second straight in local play and Ohio Northern's first loss in four conference starts.

Smarting over its defeat by Marshall, Toledo University knocked off Cincinnati's Bearcats, 50-41, for its 11th win in 12 starts this season. Rocket Center Bob Gerber scored 19 points but the game actually was won from the foul line, Toledo sinking 14 of 21 free throws, compared with five of 18 for the Bearcats. The game was at Cincinnati.

Mount Union steam-rolled Heidelberg, 78-44, for its fourth consecutive Ohio Conference victory and seventh win of the season. The invading Student Princes took an early lead but trailed 36-21 at the halfway mark before losing their fifth game in eight starts.

In other contests Tiffin edged Defiance, 43-41, at Tiffin, and Akron University thumped Western Reserve, 70-54, at Cleveland.
